RESEARCH INTERESTS:

- The cognitive and neural architecture of the language system
- The relationship between the language system and other cognitive and neural systems (e.g., the domain-general “multiple demand (MD)” system, the system that supports social cognition, perceptual and motor systems, etc.)
- Linguistic and other cognitive deficits in autism spectrum disorders and other developmental and acquired disorders
- Reorganization in the language system (and the rest of the mind and brain) after brain damage, including contributions of domain-general mechanisms to recovery
- Inter-individual variability in the neural patterns of language activity, and the relationship between these patterns and i) behavior, and ii) genetic variation
- The nature of abstract conceptual representations and their relationship to linguistic representations
